September 5, 2012. Every once in a while, along comes a performance so extraordinary, you can't help being in awe, jaw agape and head scratched in amazement!

This Slammer took down none other than PizzaMan and Pepilepu on the 12th hole, and IronMaiden on the 13th.

Who could possibly deliver such decisive thrashings? Chef? Malone? Chilly? No! It was none other than Gator, he who has only recently moved from the D to the C-class.

He had the round of his life at Gatineau, going even par on the front nine and ending up a trinity below that oh-so-significant Eh-D! Welcome to provisionals, Gator!

Be sure to read the summaries. They can be very entertaining. See especially Lucky's report for the September 1st event at Manderley. He is obviously channeling his inner Shakespeare!

In my last contribution to this week in review, I suggested that one of the most difficult par-threes in Slammerdom was number seven at Casselview.

Well, I had several responses suggesting other possibilities, and yes, I forgot about number nine at Cedarhill. I think this is probably the hardest one we play.

The severely tilted green makes it almost impossible to two-putt. If the hole is in the back, it's very difficult to putt all the way to the hole.

If the hole is in the front, you're most likely going to be putting downhill, in which case... forget it!

This past week there were two events at eQuinelle, which continues to be the most desirable course on the Tour — but somehow... one of the events this week was not sold out: this must be a first!

I guess Slammers are wallowing in the doldrums of August. Well it's September now... so no excuses, guys and gals! Get out there and compete!

Speaking of competing, the EG Club Championship is coming up quickly. This is a three-day stroke-play event on September 22nd at Prescott, September 23rd at Perth and October 6th at Gatineau — in conjunction with the 2012 EG Wind-Up.

This year, there are 12 different divisions for players of every skill level — and yes, you can play both Slammer format and stroke-play at the same time, assuming of course you are an EG Member.

Another big event for both Slammers and EG Members is, of course, the annual Golf-O-Max Smuggler's Glen Get-Away, October 13-14, where we spend two glorious days down in Gananoque.

Be sure to check out the details for both events at executivegolf.ca/events.

See you on the links!
